

The FCC dropprd the ball over the movie Saving Private Ryan. As a veteran, I am saddened and disappointed the FCC did not give guidance to broadcasters that they would not be fined for showing a movie that has already been shown for several years running with no issues.

The context of the adult language is clearly not intended to be purient and as a 20 year veteran, can attest to being an accurate portrayal of a soldier. With the war in Iraq, the message that such a movie that is clearly so supportive of Veterans, could not be shown because it might be obscene, sickens me.
